9-11 Remembrance

As today reminds us of much heartache and pain, let us not forget all of those we have lost. Let us not forget all of those brave service men and women who risked their lives to protect and save their fellow Americans, those strangers who looked into the face of death and took it upon themselves to become heroes and let us not forget all of the families who are without that special someone. On this very day, let us honor and remember all of those people with a moment of silence and prayer. As we raise our heads in remembrance, let us not forget how we came together as a united front against evil and that we can never be defeated when we become one...We are the United States of America.

God Bless,
